Hideaway Farm is offering the opportunity for a summer internship for college students, preferably ones majoring in biology or veterinarian medicine. We're looking for ones with a strong desire to work within a whitetail deer breeding operation, as well as all areas of operating a whitetail farm.

Intern duties include, but not limited to:

- retrieving fawns - administering medication, tattooing, tagging, and microchipping
- bottlefeeding, feeding, and daily caring for whitetail fawns
- sanitizing of bottles, equipment and pens
- herd observation, physical exams, administering medications
- keeping accurate records
- daily monitoring of nursery, adult pens, & herd health
- feeding and caring for all animals on the farm
- assisting on all types of work on farm (feeding, mowing, fence repair, fill mosquito mister, Etc.)

This is a full time summer internship. We operate 7 days a week. We work some long days, in the Texas heat, with very few days off.

Qualifications:

- Should be a animal science, wildlife, biology or pre- vet major.
- Hard-working, self motivated, and reliable.
- Able to commit to the whole summer program (May-August)
- Must be patient with animals and working with others.
- Must be physically fit and able to lift 50+ pounds.
- Must be able to follow explicit directions.
- Must have clean driving record with no criminal past.
- Must be a non-smoker

You must have your own reliable transportation.
