Located in the hill country of Texas, there's a little slice of heaven that is secluded from the rest of the world, better known as Mountain Home. Here is where you will find the beautiful ranch, Lonehollow Whitetails.

Lonehollow is a ranch known for its breathtaking scenery including their renowned whitetail deer. The ranch was started in 2010 by Clayton Clark. Clayton was searching for the best genetics he could find in the breeding industry. His overall goal was to create a Premier Hunting Ranch in the state of Texas. Since Clayton was an avid outdoorsman hunter himself, he knew he could not take any short cuts in this area. The bar was already set at a high standard and if he wanted to exceed this bar he would have to do things right. After a year of researching and spending time at many of the top ranches, he was finally ready to make his decision and launch the project. Lonehollow Whitetails was formed by the purchase of the entire deer herd formally known as Woodard Whitetails. This decision was easy once he had the knowledge he gained from the ranches he had visited. When choosing a prestigious herd, Clayton was not looking for just one superstar buck on a farm, but instead the farm average. More precisely, the consistency he saw in the buck herd would answer all of his unanswered questions. This marked the start of something new and exciting for Lonehollow Whitetails.

Today there are a few more names associated with Lonehollow Whitetails such as Jeff Carr and Brandon Sapp. Brandon Sapp had worked with the top Texas Breeder from 2007 to 2010 and he partnered with Clayton in early 2010. Clayton wanted the biggest bucks in Texas to harvest at Lonehollow. Brandon's answer was, "Get the right genetics and the most professional people in the industry, it will be more expensive, and the deer will arrive a few years later". Brandon knew from the day he met Clayton an introduction to Jeff Carr was paramount to acquiring the genetics Lonehollow needed to rise to the top. Today, Brandon spends most of his time marketing and helping Jeff build pedigrees so the future will always be bright for Lonehollow Whitetails. Jeff Carr is also an avid outdoorsman and has been hunting his entire life ever since he could hold a gun. He has a desire to be outdoors and working with the wildlife. He is very active with the ranch and enjoys the challenge of continually trying to outperform the prior results. Jeff's philosophy on the deer business is all about "Production...No Hype, No Spin...Just simply...Results...Breed what is proven!" No doubt this has worked very well for the Lonehollow operation. Since Lonehollow Whitetails has been around, it has been able to keep its name in the deer industry by starting out with notorious producing genetics and also making an investment in the future of their ranch by only breeding to what they think is the best genetics out there. Lonehollow Whitetails has a lot to offer to this industry including its proven line of genetics in the state of Texas. More specifically, Lonehollow has based its foundation on the 'Gladiator pure South Texas line'. Gladiator has sired more offspring than any other buck in the history of the business. Clients have even questioned Jeff Carr, "When will folks quit using Gladiator?" He has been around for a while and they are always hearing about "Gladiator". Jeff simply replies by saying, "People will stop using Gladiator to breed when it stops WORKING! Show me a better production and I will use it..." Gladiator is not the only thing that makes this ranch unique. The fact that they are so diverse in their breeding techniques also makes this operation exclusive. They breed with outstanding Northern lines as well. Some of their well known Trophy Breeder Bucks that you may have heard of include: Walking Tall, Gladiator, Gladiator II, Secret Weapon, Gladiator Elite, Diesel King, True Grit, and Gladiator XL.

Lonehollow Ranch is not just a breeding ground for big bucks but they also have premier hunts located in Vanderpool, Texas at the hunting facility. As you enter Lonehollow Ranch you are surrounded by high hills, deep valleys, and sacred hunting grounds.

"Lonehollow's goal for the future, is to grow big, beautiful, hardy animals that "look like a deer should look", says Jeff. "If a breeder does most things right, they will grow big deer." Lonehollow challenges themselves to meet and hopefully surpass these standards to the best of their ability.
